DEVASTATING RAID MADE ON FORMOSA BY 1,000 BOMBERS

Japanese High Command Says Island Stronghold Is Attacked

TO SOFTEN DEFENSES

Point of Assault is 550 Miles South of Main Japanese Islands

By International News Service

A devastating 1,000-plane assault, presumably carried out by American bombers, was launched today against the Japanese island stronghold of Formosa, off the southeast coast of China, the Japanese High Command said.

The enemy announcement indicated a protracted assault to soften up defenses on the approaches to the Chinese mainland was in progress.

The vast aerial armada, according to the Tokyo radio, launched direct attacks against the entire area of Takao, Tainan and Taichu, key points in the railway network extending through the island.

First word of the attack on Formosa, 100 miles off the China coast and about 550 miles below the southernmost of the main Japanese islands, came in a broadcast of an official Imperial High Command communique.

The assertion that 1,000 planes participated in the gigantic raid was made by the Tokyo radio.

The Jap broadcasts were recorded in the United States by the FCC. Almost simultaneously the German DNB agency sent out wireless dispatches containing the text of the Jap communique.

The assault, of tremendous proportions according to Tokyo, was launched at seven o'clock this morning (6 p. m. Wednesday E. V. T.). Eight hours later, Tokyo said, the sky battle was continuing.

There was no immediate confirmation in Allied quarters of the reported raid but it was believed possible that carrier task forces operating in the far Pacific may have launched the assault against the island, the defenses of which must be reduced before any Allied landings in China take place.

Formosa is high on the list of enemy bastions which must be smashed along the Allied route to Tokyo and in the campaign to aid the Chinese in driving the invader from their soil.

Formosa is situated south of the Ryukyu islands, midway between Formosa and the main Jap home islands, which were blasted Monday by planes from Admiral William F. Halsey's Third U. S. Fleet.

It seemed probable that the carrier forces commanded by Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, veteran leader of daring American raids into Jap strongpoints, swept south from the Ryukyu group and followed the assault there with an aerial bombardment of Formosa.

The Japs claimed that some 100 Allied planes already had been downed in bitter aerial dogfights and by anti-aircraft fire.

Radio Tokyo asserted that by 9 a. m. Jap time, two hours after the attack began, 40 Allied planes had been shot out of the sky by Jap air forces.

"The enemy continued to carry out his persistent attack, raiding

UP-TO-PRESS-TIME WAR BULLETINS

(By International News Service)

STIFF BATTLE ON FOR LIVERGANO

Rome—American troops of the Allied Fifth Army waged a stiff fight today for Livergano, key point on the route to the northern Italian city of Bologna on the Florence-Bologna highway.

Flanking maneuvers were carried out simultaneously by other Fifth Army troops advancing west of Monte Tumici.

The advance in the west coast sector near the Ligurian Sea was paced by Brazilian troops. The Brazilians captured the town of Barga.

British and Indian troops of the Eighth Army on the Adriatic sector slashed forward two miles in the foothills south of the Bologna-Rimini highway.

The Germans are fighting strenuously and desperately in each position, holding against the Allied onslaughts until they are either killed or captured.

The new German tactics are characterized by numerous counterattacks.

Allied bombers operating at night blasted Verona where railway yards were bombed.

The Allied Mediterranean air force chalked up 1700 missions yesterday, bombing industrial targets at Vienna and strafing other areas in Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

AACHEN BATTLE RAGES INTO SECOND DAY

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, France—The grueling battle between American assault forces and Nazi defense units at Aachen raged into its second day today and Supreme Headquarters declared there was no truth in reports that the enemy was evacuating the Siegfried Line bastion.

Deprecating accounts that a general evacuation was started after the Americans smashed forward behind a devastating air and artillery bombardment, an official spokesman said fighting around Aachen still is under way.

Stiff fighting was in progress in the nearby Haaran and Wurselen areas, while the situation on other fronts was generally unchanged.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

Kenneth Fosbenner, son of Mrs. Florence Fosbenner, Sellersville, will probably have the most unique memento of World War II, among all the veterans from Bucks county. It is his steel helmet with a bullet hole in front and another in the back. The holes were made by the same bullet, and by some miracle he lives to tell the tale.

He wrote to his mother to tell her he was only slightly wounded, and that his helmet gives evidence of his wonderful good fortune at being able to return with it. He is believed to be in France with the U. S. armed forces.

His brother, Lloyd, also is in the Army.

Failing to straighten out after rounding a curve opposite the Wilford J. Child's home near the Farm School on Route 202, Lieut. James J. F. Clark, Army Air Corps, shortly after 12 o'clock Tuesday, lost control of his car and plunged into a pole at the side of the road, resulting in a fracture of both jaws and a compound fracture of the left leg. He was unconscious when taken to Abington Hospital after being examined at the Doylestown Emergency Hospital.

Lieut. Clark, formerly a resident of Chalfont, now living at 534 W. Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia, was on his way home after visiting in Chalfont and Doylestown. He returned a few days ago from the European front, where he completed 76 missions as pilot of a Zenke Thunderbolt.

The Yardley Methodist Church was host to the Methodist Leadership Training School recently.

This traveling school is sponsored by the Bucks County Methodist Ministers Association and offers an opportunity to develop leadership, improve teaching and promote Christian growth.

The classes will meet in the following places: October 7, at Trexore; October 24, at Emittie; October 31, Langhorne; November 7, Newtown; November 14, Morrisville.

John Brambley, U. S. Coast Guard, is enjoying a leave, and favored with a vocal solo in Sunday School of the Newportville Community Church—Presbyterian on Sunday morning.

ASKS ABOUT THOSE WHO WILL MAKE THE PEACE

Edgar W. Baird, Jr., Speaks Over the Radio from Phila. Station

IS TREAS. CANDIDATE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12—Republican candidate for the office of State Treasurer, Edgar W. Baird, Jr., last evening spoke over the radio as follows:

"Whom do you want at the peace table? Do you want the spirit of our departed sons and the influence of those still living to be truly represented at the peace table or do you want the spectre of un-American philosophies to dominate the part that the United States of America shall play in writing the peace for the future world? We must think deeply about the coming peace.

"In January 1945, the next President of the United States will be inaugurated and at the same time there will be sworn into office a new Vice-President—a man who may be a very vital factor in the future world. Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio, chosen three times by the people of his state as their executive, a man of sterling character and proven ability, is the Republican choice for Vice-President, while the New Deal's candidate for Vice-President is Harry S. Truman.

"Next January Franklin D. Roosevelt will be sixty-three years of age. He has served as president for twelve long, grueling and exhausting years. In the history of our country, only four presidents have ever been inaugurated after reaching the age of sixty-three. Two of them died in office. William Henry Harrison, the ninth president, died thirty days after he was inaugurated. Zachary Taylor, the twelfth president, died one year and four months after his inauguration. The other two served out their full terms but none of them had lived through the tension and strain that the present occupant of the White House has been under for twelve long years.

"Life is uncertain at its best, as we learned a few days ago when the hand of fate was laid upon the shoulders of that strong, rugged individual, Wendell L. Willkie, at the age of fifty-two. Yes, life is uncertain and when Roosevelt tries to stretch his twelve-year occupancy of the White House into sixteenth years, he is seriously tempting the fate which laid its hands on William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor and, just lately, Wendell Willkie. But he is tempting more than his own fate, he is tempting the fate of the future world, because standing beside him as his running mate is Harry S. Truman, Tom Pendergast's office boy. Truman, following his failure in business, was picked up by the Pendergast political machine of Kansas City—the most powerful, ruthless and corrupt political machine in American history. And now Truman, the product of this notorious Pendergast machine, could be the chair at the peace table. Do you mothers and fathers want to take that chance? Is it possible that any true American would want to be represented among the great

RATIONING PROGRAM OF 'GAS' TO BE BROADENED

Office of Price Administration To Handle Some Work of ODT Office

OUTLINES THE DETAILS

Effective Monday, the Office of Price Administration is broadening its gasoline rationing program to include a number of functions which heretofore have been handled by the Office of Defense Transportation, William H. Boyd, District Director of ODT at Philadelphia announced today. Mr. Boyd said all operators of commercial motor vehicles which require Certificates of War Necessity such as buses, trucks, taxicabs, rental cars, etc., will be affected by the change.

Mr. Boyd explained that under the new procedure, applications by commercial motor vehicle operators for temporary and non-recurring rations will be made to OPA local War Price and Rationing Boards rather than to ODT District Offices. These rations will be issued by local Boards and any appeals from decisions of the Boards will be handled by OPA. Thus the OPA will have complete authority over the issuance of such additional rations.

It was pointed out that recommendations on temporary and non-recurring gas allotments for trucks owned by farmers will continue to be made by County Farm Transportation Committees but will be referred to OPA local Boards for action—instead of ODT District Offices.

Applications for Certificates of War Necessity or for permanent changes in CWN allotments will be handled by ODT District Offices as in the past. Forms for making such applications may be obtained at all OPA Boards, and also at ODT District and field offices and Offices of County Farm Transportation Committees. ODT will continue to certify permanent commercial vehicle needs and issue Certificates of War Necessity to cover these needs.

Since the majority of current applications, according to ODT, are for temporary allocations, this new procedure will take a troublesome, but routine chore off the hands of ODT district staffs, releasing personnel to direct a greater amount of attention and effort to the transportation phases of its program such as traffic registration, organization.

BUSINESSMEN AND THE NEW DEAL

H. The candidacy of Senator Truman for Vice-President is an affront to every American who hopes to see a return of the day when our national government may have standards higher than mere machine politics.

Truman, who is in the United States Senate because of the corrupt Prendergast machine voted 50,000 names off tombstones in his behalf, won the nomination because of the big-city Democratic machine bosses went to bat for him—the Kellys, Flynn, O'Connells and Hagues.

The money which corrupt political gangs squeeze out of the public comes largely from the pockets of businessmen. No man long in business has failed to gain some understanding of the methods of such political machines.

Truman's victory as Vice-President would be a notable victory for the Democratic gangs; his later elevation to the Presidency would set the keynote for new depths of political depravity in the United States.

No man who believes in good government can afford to take the chance implied in voting for the Democratic ticket.

Eisenhower Gives War Summary

Paris—Allied victory in the war against Nazi Germany is "certain," Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said in an eloquent summary of the conflict today.

"I have complete confidence," he said, "that the peoples of the United States, Britain and France and of all the United Nations will see this war through to final victory."

"And as long as they will see it through I know that our soldiers, sailors and airmen possess the indomitable will to win."

"We have a hard job ahead, but victory is certain."

Reviewing progress of operations so far, the General said that in so far as conditions of weather, terrain and supplies permit the war goes on steadily and aggressively.

Gen. Eisenhower said that the Germans are fighting a war of desperation since Hitler has nothing to gain by quitting.

It is not a question of common sense but one of desperation, he declared.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE TO BENSALEM BLDGS.

Report on Educational Congress Made By the Superintendent

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 12—Improvement to grounds and buildings were reported upon at the October session of Bensalem Township board of school directors last evening in the high school building.

The second floor rooms at Andalusia school are being painted on Saturdays; grounds adjacent to the high school building here are being coated with a bituminous base substance; and the fire escape at Andalusia building has been formally approved by the Department of Labor and Industry.

The board received the resignation of Miss Esther Michener, teacher of grades one and two at Cornwells Heights school, effective the end of this month.

Activities were mentioned for the next few weeks. These include the junior high school play to be staged tonight and tomorrow night in the high school auditorium. The title is "Yesterday's Roses." Football schedule includes: Oct. 14th, Pa. School for the Deaf, Philadelphia, at Bensalem, 2 p. m.; Oct. 21st, Bensalem at Bristol; Oct. 28th, Morrisville at Bensalem; Nov. 4th, Bordentown Manual Training School at Bordentown, N. J. On Oct. 20th, the Bensalemite Club will conduct a sports dance in the high school auditorium.

A photographer will be at the school on Monday and Tuesday next to photograph seniors for the year book.

Transportation problems were discussed. The pupil load from Andalusia has become so unwieldy that it has become necessary to ask senior high school pupils living within two miles of the school to seek their own means of transportation. Bristol Township buses are transporting high school students from the Eddington area to the high school in order to reduce the overload.

A report on the Educational Congress held at Harrisburg two days last week was given by Superintendent of Bensalem public schools, A. Kurtz King. The manner in which the commission, appointed by Governor Martin, proposes to change the base for paying state appropriations on accounts of teachers, was studied in detail, in order to determine how such affects local board work.

COLUMBUS DAY

On the anniversary of the landing by Christopher Columbus on San Salvador, one of the Bahamas, it is customary to pay honor to his eminence as a maker of charts and maps, his skill as a navigator, his persistence in selling his dream of a New World to the rulers of Portugal, Genoa and Spain, and his mastery of the mutinous crews that would have turned back when his quest seemed all but successful.

As the years go on, less is said of his being the discoverer of the New World. Others from Europe, and probably some from Asia, preceded him. But more is being said about his enterprise under the most discouraging re-buffs. Faith in his calculations, and probably in the rumors that he heard while voyaging among the Atlantic island outposts of Europe, kept his spirit burning.

But he had other reasons for wishing to succeed. Under his contract with the Spanish crown, he was to be viceroy, or boss, of all the countries that he discovered. Furthermore, he was working on a commission basis. He was to get 10 per cent of the value of all the produce of these countries.

Columbus had an eye for business. He was a good advertiser. Returning from his first voyage, he scattered his story through the seaports of Europe. Soon he set out again with six times as many ships and ten times as many men. The exploring and colonizing business was good, but the boys in the home office got in some dirty work and once he was placed in chains on his way home. He died in poverty.

Time has shown that the real poverty of his era was in the vision of those who called themselves rich in power and money. The spirit in which Columbus was rich was so rare and lofty that the world has been a long time growing up to it.

MILITARY EYES

So beauticians are indulging in a plot to get girls married through irresistible eyes! That is the evidence given at the silver anniversary of the American Cosmetics National Association in Chicago. The make-up to capture the boys, so beauticians were told to tell girls, who go to shoppes for lookies, is the "military eye." This "eye" is described as a framed orbit following natural lines. Eyebrows come in for a part of the military eye. They must be the frames.

With them the girl who is looking for a husband will find it easier to "frame" that boy friend she wants into looking into her eyes and surrendering. But the beauty experts may be in for a hard fall. When the fighting men return from the far corners of the earth, they likely will want to get back close to nature. If they do, the girls who doctor nature by creating "liquid" eyes "framed" in alluring tints, may get the cold, hard stare from real military eyes.

College football is warming up, but those line smashes, forward passes and end runs in the Pacific are much more diverting.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus King and Mrs. William Hertzler were Monday visitors of friends in Hulmeville.

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

Services for Nora—on April 15—were private. Only the family and a few friends were present. Mr. Queen, Judge and Clarice Martin, Dr. Willoughby, and some of John F.'s people from the bank. Frank Lloyd was seen about the edge of the group, straining for a glimpse of the lovely profile in the copper casket. He looked as if he had not taken his clothes off for a week, or slept during that time. When Hermy's eye rested on him, he shrank and disappeared. There were perhaps twenty mourners in all.

Hermy was heroic. She sat on straight, eyes steady and she didn't cry. Pat said it was because she was all cried out. Lola had to take John F. by the hand. Ellery saw the finer points of Jim Haight's psychology. But that was after the event. Beforehand it was impossible to tell, because Jim acted his part perfectly. He fooled them all, including the author-detective.

Jim came to the cemetery between two detectives, seemingly ignoring them, looking neither to right nor to left, on the path under the aged trees up to the top of the hill where the newly-turned earth gaped.

Most of Wrightsville watched from a decent distance. The Wrights stood about the grave in a mournful group. Lola and Pat pressing close to Hermione and their father. Close to them were Ellery Queen, Judge Eli Martin and Clarice, Doc Willoughby and some others; and, of course, Dr. Doglitt.

When Jim was brought up, a tiny murmur arose among the onlookers. Hermy's lips were seen to move and Jim went over to her and kissed her. He paid no attention to anyone else; after that he just stood there at the grave, a thin figure of loneliness.

Soon the interment service was over, and they were shuffling down the walk. Hermy straining backward to catch a last glimpse of the casket. The crowd at the gate parted silently.

Then Jim Haight did it. One moment he was trudging along between the detectives, a dead man staring at the ground; the next he came alive. He tripped one of his guards. The man fell backward. Jim struck the second guard on the jaw, so that the man fell on his brother officer and they thrashed about, like wrestlers, trying to regain their feet.

In those few seconds Jim was gone, running through the crowd like a bull, bowing people over, dodging and twisting.

Ellery shouted at him, but Jim ran on.

The detectives were on their feet now, running too, revolvers out uselessly. To fire might mean hitting innocent people.

And then Ellery saw that Jim's madness was not so mad at all. For a quarter way down the hill, past all the parked vehicles, stood a single large car, its nose pointed away from the cemetery. No one was in it, but the motor had been kept running. Ellery knew, for Jim leaped in and the car shot forward at once.

By the time the two detectives reached a clear space, and fired down the hill, the limousine was a toy in the distance, careening crazily at a great speed.

After another few moments, the detectives reached their own car and took up the chase, one driving, the other following. But Jim was well out of range as the two cars disappeared.

The crowd shouted and swept over the Wrights and their friends, and automobiles began flying down the hill in clouds of dust.

Hermy lay on the living-room settee, and Pat and Lola were applying oil compresses to her head while John F. tried the pages of one of his stamp albums with great deliberation, as if it were one of the most important things in the world. He was in a corner by the window to catch the late afternoon light. Clarice Martin was holding Hermy's hand tightly in an ecstasy of remorse, crying over her defection during the trial and over Nora and over this last shocking blow.

At the fireplace Dr. Willoughby and Mr. Queen conversed in low tones. Then Judge Martin came in from outdoors. And with him was Carter Bradford.

Everything stopped, as if an enemy had walked into camp. But Carter ignored it. He was quite pale, but held himself erect; he kept from looking at Pat who had turned paler than he. Clarice Martin was frankly frightened. She glanced quickly at her husband. But Eli shook his head and went over to the window to seat himself by John F.

"I don't want to intrude, Mrs. Wright," said Carter stiffly. "But I had to tell you how badly I feel about—all this."

"Thank you, Carter," said Hermy. "Lola, stop babbling in! Carter, what about—?" Hermy swallowed. "Jim?"

"Jim got away, Mrs. Wright."

"I'm glad," cried Pat. "Oh, I'm so very glad!"

Carter glanced her way. "Don't say that, Patty. That sort of thing never winds up right. Nobody gets away." Jim would have been better advised to have stuck it out.

"So that you could bound him to his death, I suppose! All over again!"

John F. left his stamp album where it was. He put his thin hand on Carter's arm. "I was nice of you to come here today, Cart. I'm sorry if I was ever harsh with you. How does it look?"

"Bad, Mr. Wright," Carter's lips tightened. "Naturally, the alarm is out. All highways are being watched. It's true he got away, but it's only a question of time before he's captured."

"Bradford," inquired Mr. Queen from the fireplace, "have you traced the getaway car?"

"Looked like a put-up job to me," muttered Dr. Willoughby. "That car was in a mighty convenient place, and the motor was running!"

"Whose car is it?" queried Lola.

"It was rented from Homer Findlay's garage in Low Village this morning."

"Rented?" exclaimed Clarice Martin. "By whom?"

"Robert Roberts," Ellery murmured. "Ah, in a tone of dark satisfaction, and nodded as if that were all he had wanted to know. But the others were surprised.

Lola tossed her head. "Good for her!"

"Carter allowed me to talk to the woman myself," said Judge Eli Martin wearily. "She's smart. Insists she hired the car just to drive to the cemetery this morning."

"And that she left the motor running by mistake," added Carter Bradford dryly.

"And was it a coincidence that she also turned the car about so that it pointed down the hill?" asked Mr. Queen.

"That's what I asked her," said Carter. "Oh, there's no question about her complicity, and we're holding her. But that doesn't give us a case against this Roberts woman. We'll probably have to let her go."

"She visited Jim on Sunday," remarked Ellery reflectively.

"Also yesterday, I'm convinced she arranged the escape with Jim then."

"What difference does it make?" Hermy sighed. "Escape—no escape. Jim won't ever escape." Then Hermy said a queer thing, considering how she had always claimed she felt about her son-in-law and his guilt. Hermy exclaimed, "Poor Jim!"

The news arrived at ten o'clock that same night. Carter Bradford came over again and this time he went directly to Pat Wright and took her hand. She was so astonished she forgot to snatch it away. Then he said gently: "It's up to you and Lola now, Pat."

"What, on earth are you talking about?" asked Pat in a shrill tight voice.

"Dakin's men have found the car Jim escaped in."

"Found it?"

Ellery Queen rose from a dark corner and came over into the light. "If it's bad news, keep your voices down. Mrs. Wright's just gone to bed, and John F. doesn't look as if he could take any more today. Where was the car found?"

"At the bottom of a ravine off Route 478A, up in the hills. About fifty miles from here."

"Lord!" breathed Pat, staring. "It had crashed through the highway rail," reported Carter. "Just past a hairpin turn. Dropped about two hundred feet—"

"And Jim?" asked Ellery.

Pat sat down in the love seat by the fireplace, looking up at Cart as if he were a judge about to pronounce doom.

"Found in the car," Cart turned aside. "Dead." He turned back and looked humbly at Pat. "So that's the end of the case."

"Poor Jim!" whispered Pat.

"I want to talk to you two," said Mr. Queen.

It was very late. Hermione had heard, and had gone to pieces. Strange that the funeral of her daughter should have found her strong, and the news of her son-in-law's death weak; he had taken to trembling, and the doctor noticed it, and packed him off to bed in a guest room while Lola assisted with Hermy, and Pat helped her father up the stairs. . . . Now it was over, and they were both asleep, and Lola had locked herself in, and Dr. Willoughby had gone home, sagging.

"I want to talk to you two," said Mr. Queen.

Carter was still there. He had been a bed of rock for Hermy this night. She had actually clung to him while she wept, and Mr. Queen thought this, too, was strange. And then he thought: No, this is the rock, the last rock, and Hermy clings. If she lets go, she drowns, they all drown. That is how she must feel.

And he repeated: "I want to talk to you two."

Faith Clarke's SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

"BROTHER OR SISTER!" counts are exciting! They come in sizes 4 to 10 at $14.95, 12 to 18 at $15.95. These grand sport garments defy wind and weather. They are natural color gabardine, pile-lined (pile 50% wool and 50% mohair), cotton backed for strength. Double breasted, leather buttons, storm wristlets, four pockets, Mackinaw type, thigh length. Grand! Snellenburg Boys' Center. (3rd fl.)

DARLING are the full-length rain-capes for girls seven to fourteen! They have "em, The capes come in blue, with fine-lined overplaid of red and white. Pretty, pretty! Each has an attached hood for pulling over hat or hair. The capes are cut to fit smoothly over the shoulders and closely at the girls' throats. Snuggly buttoned down the fronts. And only $3.95 each. Worth shopping for. Snellenburg Girls' Dept. (2nd floor.)

THEY'RE HERE NOW—the cookie jars you couldn't find last Christmas. I don't know of anything that makes a jollier gift. Better buy them in time this year. The Snellenburg China Dept. makes a regular hobby of unusual cookie jars, mostly in generous size. The following are in colorful pottery—Dutch Boy or Dutch Girl, $2.49; Pig, $2.49; Rabbit, $2.49; Big Bear, $2.49; Little Bear, $1.79; Big Clown, $2.49; Little Clown, $1.79; a rooster, $1.79. All are safe to order sight unseen. (3rd fl.)

"NORTH STAR" blankets are rightfully famous. The good Snellenburg Store has luckily secured a full line. Every one offered is 100% wool. Prices range from those in the budget class to those indicating emphatic luxury, but all the blankets are richly bound in rayon satin, and are lovely for home or bridal gift. There is a "Starspurs" at $11.95, a "Starlight" at $13.95, Exquisite North Star "Regal" blankets (separately cut and bound) are priced at $22.50 a pair. Similarly made North Star "Regal" blankets come at $45 a pair. There are still other North Star blankets in this department, priced at $16.95 and $23.50. Many rich shades. Some wise shoppers are buying them for Christmas giving. Blanket Dept. (2nd fl.)

OUTWITTING PLUMBERS is a satisfying indoor sport if ever there was one! Learn to "plumb" your own. Save money and the time plumbers amble back and forth for tools. When it comes to stuffed drains, you may have a plunger. However, plungers have been known to go on strikes. I know something better—a water-pressure drain cleaner! Looks a little like a simple hand shower spray. One end fastens to the faucet and the other cups over the drain area in tubs, sinks, washbowls and even toilets. Turn on the hot-water faucet slowly, and everything pops out of the drain, from orange skins to rabbits! All this and more for $2.50 and $3.95. One drainer has a three-foot hose, the other a hose about six feet in length. Some gadgets! Snellenburgs, House Furnishings Dept. (3rd fl.)

38 TO 46 size Cardigan sweaters for women can now be had in that good Snewer Section of the Snellenburg Sportswear Dept. They are knitted in a firm and attractive rib pattern. Long sleeves, V-necks, buttons match the tones of beige, green, brown, powder, navy, wine. (2nd fl.)

Bristol As A Spa

The enclosed advertisement I found in a newspaper of 1805. I think it is amusing, considering the condition of the Delaware at present, and would be of some interest to the public. It appeared in "Aurora, General Advertiser: Published (daily) by William Duane, successor of Benjamin Franklin
Bache, in Franklin Court, Market Street, Philadelphia." Headed
"Bristol Baths" it says:
"Twenty miles from Philadelphia on the main road to New York, and banks of the Delaware.
"Which in point of situation is not equalled by any watering place in the United States. Will be completed in a few days for the accommodation of visitors.

"The medicinal qualities of these waters are highly spoken of by many distinguished gentlemen, particularly Dr. John De Normandie in several papers containing important facts relative to their beneficial effects in the cure of all chronic diseases, published in 1st

vol. Am. Philosophical Society.

"May 27, 1805."

GOOD
NEWS! DU PONT

is self-cleaning!

Get good paint now... It pays

In painting your house, protection of the wood is just as important as good looks. Du Pont House Paint forms a tough, durable film—guards the surface against rot, rust, and decay.
And its beauty lasts and lasts.

Keeps white houses white

Du Pont House Paint contains titanium dioxide pigment—whiter than snow! That's why, with Du Pont House Paint, you'll have the whitest house in the block. Yes, and this paint stays white, because—

It's self-cleaning

All paints collect dirt on exposure. But, with Du Pont House Paint, "self-cleaning" starts after a few months of normal weather conditions. A fine white powder forms on the surface.
Heavy rains wash this away, carrying the dirt with it—leaving the newly exposed surface clean and white again! (Unusual climatic or dirt-collecting conditions in extremely sooty industrial communities may, of course, delay this process.)
Because this "self-cleaning" is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected.

Despite this remarkable quality of Du Pont House
Paint, it costs no more than other good paints.

DU PONT HOUSE PAINT $3.35
in 5-gallon lots

► We will be glad to recommend a reliable painter. He knows how to do the job right, how much or how little paint to use. His skill means savings for you—and paint conservation for America.

powers by Harry Truman, the product of the gutters of Kansas City politics? Harry S. Truman before he was elected Senator was an obscure county judge in Missouri. He was put in that position by Tom Pendergast. After he had served as judge, he asked Pendergast to make him county collector. This position, under the Democratic rule in Kansas City, carried with it fees of thirty to forty thousand dollars a year, and Pendergast felt that Harry Truman was hardly deserving of such a rich plum, so he said: "No, Harry, no county collector job for you just yet, but I'll make you United States Senator until you are ready to become county collector." So down to Washington as United States Senator from Missouri went Harry Truman, backed up with Tom Pendergast's own remark: "I can send my office boy to Washington as Senator." Yes, Harry Truman was elected Senator with the help of that Pendergast machine, which produced in Kansas City more votes than there were registered voters in the county, that machine which controlled all of the sordid vice and corruption with which that city was ridden. Yes, that Pendergast machine was led by the same Tom Pendergast who eventually ended up in the penitentiary at Leavenworth and is today a paroled convict. That's the kind of background Harry Truman has. He is the same Harry Truman who publicly showed the people of this country his obligation to Pendergast, the jail bird. He is the same Harry Truman who stood on the floor of the Senate and defended Tom Pendergast with the statement that his boss was being persecuted for political reasons. He is the same Harry Truman who denounced the judges from the floor of the Senate—judges who had been appointed by the Governor of Missouri to clean up the foul mess of Kansas City. He is the same Harry Truman who did everything in his power to prevent the re-appointment of the United States Attorney who prosecuted the conviction of the Senator's boss, Tom Pendergast. Can that be the type of person that the people want to represent us at the peace table, No, I can't believe that the people of America will ever be willing to take the chance that this Harry Truman should take part in our peace negotiations.

"But, besides the shadow of Tom Pendergast, which is always over Harry Truman, what other figures can we see surrounding him? Let me recall to you the situation at the New Deal Convention in Chicago last July. The delegates that were there assembled wanted either Henry Wallace or Justice James Byrnes as their vice-presidential candidate. The big city bosses as represented by Hague of Jersey City, Kelly of Chicago, Flynn of Brooklyn, and Hannegan of St. Louis, would not consider Henry Wallace, Sidney Hillman, the Communist, through whom everything had to be cleared, would not consider Justice Byrnes, so bosses Hague, Kelly, Flynn and Hannegan selected the office boy of their old pal, Pendergast, the paroled convict. When Bob Hannegan, the man who is nominally heading the Democratic party until Sidney Hillman gets ready to take over completely, went to Harry Truman and told him that he was to be the vice-presidential candidate, Truman gasped and said quite frankly, 'I'm not capable of being vice-president.' Those were his very words and neither Hannegan nor Truman have ever denied them. As a matter of fact, the next morning Truman publicly withdrew his name as a candidate for vice-president by announcing it to the press. But Hannegan and Hillman were not through with Harry Truman, for he was shortly sent for by Sidney Hillman, the Communist, and after a long conference, Hillman said to Truman: 'I have not changed my mind. I want you to be vice-president.' Immediately following this conference, Harry Truman reversed his position of a few hours previously and announced that not only was he a candidate but that he would win the nomination. The subject had been cleared with Sidney Hillman's headquarters to the floor of the convention that Harry Truman must be named as the vice-presidential candidate.

"As a veteran of World War I, and the father of a son fighting today in the Infantry, I speak most feelingly to you other fathers and mothers and wives and sweethearts. I speak to you now not as a candidate for the office of State Treasurer, but I speak to you as a veteran and a father. Can we take the chance of having a man like Harry Truman represent our boys at the peace table? Can we take the chance that the influence of Tom Pendergast, the paroled convict, will be the same factor in writing the peace that it has been in everything else that Harry Truman has ever done? Can we take the chance that Boss Hague of Jersey City, Boss Kelly of Chicago, Boss Ed Flynn of Brooklyn and Boss Hannegan of St. Louis—can we take the chance that these men, who represent everything that is bad in our political system of government—can we take the chance that they to whom Harry Truman owes his candidacy, shall in return have his ear as he sits at the peace table? Can we take the chance of Harry Truman sitting at that table to negotiate with the other great powers—can we take the chance that Sidney Hillman and Earl Browder, the two leading Communists in this country, should have their words of influence with Harry Truman—Harry Truman who has always taken orders from those who have helped in his rise to power—Harry Truman who has always believed in returning favor for favor—Harry Truman, the personal henchman of Tom Pendergast, the paroled convict?

"Oh, my friends, that's what I meant when I entitled my speech tonight: 'The Spectre at the Peace Table.' Fate could very easily place Harry Truman in that chair with Winston Churchill at his right hand, Chiang Kaishek at his left and Joe Stalin facing him. But the spectres that I see and that I want to call so vividly to the minds of every one of you are the shadows of Hague, Kelly, Flynn and Hannegan, whispering to Harry Truman, one of their own boys, on the one hand, and the shades of Sidney Hillman and Earl Browder together, at Truman's other side, directing every move he makes as he plans the future welfare of this country in negotiation with Joseph Stalin.

ization of joint action plans, agricultural industry transportation programs and maintenance and conservation work.

There will be four conditions, under the new procedure, where local Boards will be authorized to issue a smaller ration than that allotted by ODT on the Certificate of War Necessity. These conditions are:

1. When the Board has knowledge of discontinuance or reduction in the operations of the commercial vehicle operator.
2. When the Board has knowledge of the misuse of commercial rations and such misuse indicates an overissuance. (For example, the use of commercial rations in an operator's personal passenger car.)
3. When an applicant indicates to the Board that his needs are less than those certified.
4. When an applicant fails to use all of his ration, or fails to claim his ration within a reasonable time.

If none of these four conditions apply, OPA Boards will continue

Under the amendment to the OPA gasoline rationing order commercial vehicle operators will hereafter return all unused or expired Transport rations to their OPA Boards rather than to ODT District Offices, as has been required in some instances in the past.

SOME "QUOTES" FROM THE WRITINGS OF WILLIAM PENN

Wide observance through Pennsylvania of the 300th anniversary of William Penn's birth on October 24th, has focused public attention on the life story, the great achievements, and the writings of the Founder of Pennsylvania. As a pamphleteer and author Penn wrote some million and a half words; the selections we quote sum up in thought and expression the rich experiences of a life full of wise observation and broad philanthropy.

"There is nothing of which we are apt to be so lavish as of Time, and about which we ought to be more solicitous; since without it we can do nothing in this World. Time is what we want most, but alas! we use worst; and for which God will certainly most strictly reckon with us, when Time shall be no more."

"Patience and Diligence, like Faith, removes Mountains."

"Never give out while there is Hope; but hope not beyond Reason, for that shews more Desire than Judgment."

"Be not tempted to presume by Success: For many that have got largely, have lost all, by coveting to get more."

"Too few know when they have Enough, and fewer know how to employ 'It.'"

"It is the still, the quiet, and the righteous life, which must be exalted over all."

"We can never be the better for our religion if our neighbor is the worse for it."

"Government seems to me a part of religion itself, a thing sacred in its institutions and end."

Pearl Buck Tells Doylestown Audience Why Chinese Failed

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 12 — That China is not the poor country that it is often described as being but, instead, it is a rich land unable, temporarily, to make use of its resources, was the assertion made by Pearl Buck in an address before a capacity audience in the auditorium of the high school, Monday.

The meeting, held under the auspices of the United China Relief Committee, was one of similar meetings held throughout the country in recognition of the 33rd anniversary of the founding of the Chinese Republic. The committee is also one of the 22 participating organizations in the annual War Fund drive which opened yesterday.

Mrs. William E. Geil, chairman of the committee, presided at the meeting and introduced the high school chorus which sang a Chinese song and the Chinese national anthem. J. Leonard Halderman, chairman of the Doylestown area for the War Fund drive, introduced Mrs. Buck.

Two reasons were outlined by the speaker for the slow progress made by China in developing her resources. One of them, the lack of transportation, prevented getting the yields from the rich sections of the country to those parts where famine and floods prevail.

"In normal times," she said, "it is cheaper to purchase flour in the United States and have the expense of shipping it to the famine affected areas than to buy it from a flour producing district in China itself."

The other reason for the backwardness of China, given by the speaker, was lack of social sense on the part of the Chinese.

"The basic element in their lives is the family and they do not understand our ideas about institutional care and assistance. Every one in China belongs to a family and to a Chinese it is brutal to send a person to an institution where he has no friends nor relatives to look after him. They have no sense of responsibility for any one outside their family."

Pearl Buck does not think that China has been treated well as one of the Allied nations. The Chinese government was not invited to the Quebec conference until after everything had been arranged and it was not represented at all at the Cairo meeting.

"China today is in worse condition than it ever was: it has been through eight years of savage warfare and the nation and its citizens are tired, not apathetic as some have accused them of being. The loss of the Burma Road prevented the war material and supplies from reaching them in any quantity and most of the fighting has been done by them with only rifles and sometimes without even those."

"We hear people talking about a peace that will last for 50 years, but I will be thankful if we have one that continues for 20 years. That is the longest I dare hope for," Mrs. Buck concluded.

The amount of the offering taken for China Relief was $233, it was announced today.

sugar bank for special occasions, you'll find it good strategy to take your cue from the Californians and serve fresh fruits on lettuce with jelly, mayonnaise or a tart French dressing as a happy dinner ending. This favorite West Coast delicacy can be counted on to appeal to sweet tooth and makes no inroads whatever on your sugar ration. With the fruit salad it's good wartime strategy to co-star decaffeinated coffee so that everyone can relax taut wartime nerves over extra cups.

You can rely on changing seasonal fruits to keep your salads from monotony. Be sure to chill and crisp the lettuce. Fruit and mayonnaise should be cold, too. And whether you serve the salad from a big dish or on individual plates, remember that precise arrangement and contrasting color make it a real picture dessert.

Use 1 rounded tablespoon all-purpose grind decaffeinated coffee to every cup (½ pint) water. Make by boiled or percolated method. (If percolated, "perk" 15 to 18 minutes to bring out the rich coffee flavor.)

Creamy Iced Mocha

Here's a tricky way to make a creamy iced coffee without cream. It's good hostess technique to make it of decaffeinated coffee, so that everybody can relax taut nerves over extra servings without worrying about sleeping problems later on. Freeze decaffeinated coffee in the ice cube trays. Use double strength decaffeinated coffee, made with two heaping tablespoons of decaffeinated coffee, regular grind, to each cup (½ pint) of water. Fill glass with frozen decaffeinated coffee cubes, then fill glass with warm milk. The resulting beverage gives the illusion of a generous cream quota.

DEVASTATING RAID MADE ON FORMOSA BY 1,000 BOMBERS

Japanese High Command
Says Island Stronghold
Is Attacked

TO SOFTEN DEFENSES

Point of Assault is 550 Miles
South of Main Japanese Islands

By International News Service

A devastating 1,000-plane assault, presumably carried out by American bombers, was launched today against the Japanese island stronghold of Formosa, off the southeast coast of China, the Japanese High Command said.

The enemy announcement indicated a protracted assault to soften up defenses on the approaches to the Chinese mainland was in progress.

The vast aerial armada, according to the Tokyo radio, launched direct attacks against the entire area of Takao, Tainan and Taichu, key points in the railway network extending through the island.

First word of the attack on Formosa, 100 miles off the China coast and about 550 miles below the southernmost of the main Japanese islands, came in a broadcast of an official Imperial High Command communique.

The assertion that 1,000 planes participated in the gigantic raid was made by the Tokyo radio.

The Jap broadcasts were recorded in the United States by the FCC. Almost simultaneously the German DNB agency sent out wireless dispatches containing the text of the Jap communique.

The assault, of tremendous proportions according to Tokyo, was launched at seven o'clock this morning (6 p. m. Wednesday E. W. T.). Eight hours later, Tokyo said, the sky battle was continuing.

There was no immediate confirmation in Allied quarters of the reported raid but it was believed possible that carrier task forces operating in the far Pacific may have launched the assault against the island, the defenses of which must be reduced before any Allied landings in China take place.

Formosa is high on the list of enemy bastions which must be smashed along the Allied route to Tokyo and in the campaign to aid the Chinese in driving the invader from their soil.

Formosa is situated south of the Ryukyu islands, midway between Formosa and the main Jap home islands, which were blasted Monday by planes from Admiral William F. Halsey's Third U. S. Fleet.

It seemed probable that the carrier forces commanded by Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, veteran leader of daring American stabs into Jap strongpoints, swept south from the Ryukyu group and followed the assault there with an aerial bombardment of Formosa.

The Japs claimed that some 100 Allied planes already had been downed in bitter aerial dogfights and by anti-aircraft fire.

Radio Tokyo asserted that by 9 a. m. Jap time, two hours after the attack began, 40 Allied planes had been shot out of the sky by Jap air forces.

"The enemy continued to carry out his persistent attack, raiding

UP-TO-PRESS-TIME WAR BULLETINS

(By International News Service)

STIFF BATTLE ON FOR LIVERGANO

Rome—American troops of the Allied Fifth Army waged a stiff fight today for Livergano, key point on the route to the northern Italian city of Bologna on the Florence-Bologna highway.

Flanking maneuvers were carried out simultaneously by other Fifth Army troops advancing west of Monte Rimici.

The advance in the west coast sector near the Ligurian Sea was paced by Brazilian troops. The Brazilians captured the town of Barga. British and Indian troops of the Eighth Army on the Adriatic sector slashed forward two miles in the foothills south of the Bologna-Rimini highway.

The Germans are fighting strenuously and desperately in each position, holding against the Allied onslaughts until they are either killed or captured.

The new German tactics are characterized by numerous counterattacks.

Allied bombers operating at night blasted Verona where railway yards were bombed.

The Allied Mediterranean air force chalked up 1700 missions yesterday, bombing industrial targets at Vienna and strafing other areas in Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

AACHEN BATTLE RAGES INTO SECOND DAY

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, France—The grueling battle between American assault forces and Nazi defense units at Aachen raged into its second day today and Supreme Headquarters declared there was no truth in reports that the enemy was evacuating the Siegfried Line bastion.

Deprecating accounts that a general evacuation was started after the Americans smashed forward behind a devastating air and artillery bombardment, an official spokesman said fighting around Aachen still is under way.

Stiff fighting was in progress in the nearby Haaran and Wurselen areas, while the situation on other fronts was generally unchanged.

Kenneth Fosbenner, son of Mrs. Florence Fosbenner, Sellersville, will probably have the most unique memento of World War II, among all the veterans from Bucks county. It is his steel helmet with a bullet hole in front and another in the back. The holes were made by the same bullet, and by some miracle he lives to tell the tale.

He wrote to his mother to tell her he was only slightly wounded, and that his helmet gives evidence of his wonderful good fortune at being able to return with it. He is believed to be in France with the U. S. armed forces.

His brother, Lloyd, also is in the Army.

Failing to straighten out after rounding a curve opposite the Wilford J. Child's home near the Farm School on Route 202, Lieut. James J. F. Clark, Army Air Corps, shortly after 12 o'clock Tuesday, lost control of his car and plunged into a pole at the side of the road, resulting in a fracture of both jaws and a compound fracture of the left leg. He was unconscious when taken to Abington Hospital after being examined at the Doylestown Emergency Hospital.

Lieut. Clark, formerly a resident of Chalfont, but now living at 534 W. Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia, was on his way home after visiting in Chalfont and Doylestown. He returned a few days ago from the European front, where he completed 76 missions as pilot of a Zenke Thunderbolt.

The Yardley Methodist Church was host to the Methodist Leadership Training School recently.

This traveling school is sponsored by the Bucks County Methodist Ministers Association and offers an opportunity to develop leadership, improve teaching and promote Christian growth.

The classes will meet in the following places: October 7, at Trevoise; October 24, at Emille; October 31, Langhorne; November 7, Newtown; November 14, Morrisville.

ASKS ABOUT THOSE WHO WILL MAKE THE PEACE

Edgar W. Baird, Jr., Speaks
Over the Radio from Phila. Station

IS TREAS. CANDIDATE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12—Republican candidate for the office of State Treasurer, Edgar W. Baird, Jr., last evening spoke over the radio as follows:

"When do you want at the peace table? Do you want the spirit of our departed sons and the influence of those still living to be truly represented at the peace table or do you want the spectre of un-American philosophies to dominate the part that the United States of America shall play in writing the peace for the future world? We must think deeply about the coming peace."

"In January 1945, the next President of the United States will be inaugurated and at the same time there will be sworn into office a new Vice-President—a man who will be a very vital factor in the future world. Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio, chosen three times by the people of his state as their executive, a man of sterling character and proven ability, is the Republican choice for Vice-President, while the New Deal's candidate for Vice-President is Harry S. Truman."

"Next January Franklin D. Roosevelt will be sixty-three years of age. He has served as president for twelve long, grueling and exhausting years. In the history of our country, only four presidents have ever been inaugurated after reaching the age of sixty-three. Two of them died in office. William Henry Harrison, the ninth president, died thirty days after he was inaugurated. Zachary Taylor, the twelfth president, died one year and four months after his inauguration. The other two served out their full terms but none of them had lived through the tension and strain that the present occupant of the White House has been under for twelve long years."

"Life is uncertain at its best, as we learned a few days ago when the hand of fate was laid upon the shoulders of that strong, rugged individual, Wendell L. Willkie, at the age of fifty-two. Yes, life is uncertain and when Roosevelt tries to stretch his twelve-year occupancy of the White House into sixteen years, he is seriously tempting the fate which laid its hands on William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor and, just lately, Wendell Willkie. But he is tempting more than his own fate, he is tempting the fate of the future world because standing beside him as his running mate is Harry S. Truman, Tom Pendergast's office boy. Truman, following his failure in business, was picked up by the Pendergast political machine of Kansas City—the most powerful, ruthless and corrupt political machine in American history. And now Truman, the product of this notorious Pendergast machine, could be the occupant of the most important chair at the peace table. Do you mothers and fathers want to take that chance? Is it possible that any true American would want to be represented among the great

Tullytown Tot Is Hostess To Friends

TULLYTOWN, Oct. 12—Kay DiCicco celebrated her second birthday anniversary with a party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael DiCicco, Lovett avenue, Sunday afternoon.

The room was decorated with orange and black crepe paper. Each child received favors of orange and black baskets. The afternoon was spent playing games with prizes awarded to Joseph Scancella and John Cattani. Kay received many lovely gifts.

RATIONING PROGRAM OF 'GAS' TO BE BROADENED

Office of Price Administration To Handle Some Work of ODT Office

OUTLINES THE DETAILS

Effective Monday, the Office of Price Administration is broadening its gasoline rationing program to include a number of functions which heretofore have been handled by the Office of Defense Transportation. William H. Boyd, District Director of ODT at Philadelphia announced today, Mr. Boyd said all operators of commercial motor vehicles which require Certificates of War Necessity such as buses, trucks, taxicabs, rental cars, etc., will be affected by the change.

Mr. Boyd explained that under the new procedure, applications for commercial motor vehicle operators for temporary and non-recurring rationing will be made to OPA local War Price and Rationing Boards rather than to ODT District Offices. These rationing will be issued by local Boards and any appeals from decisions of the Boards will be handled by OPA. Thus the OPA will have complete authority over the issuance of such additional rationing.

It was pointed out that recommendations on temporary and non-recurring gas allotments for trucks owned by farmers will continue to be made by County Farm Transportation Committees but will be referred to OPA local Boards for action—instead of ODT District Offices.

Applications for Certificates of War Necessity or for permanent changes in CWN allotments will be handled by ODT District Offices as in the past. Forms for making such applications may be obtained at all OPA Boards, and also at ODT District and field offices and offices of County Farm Transportation Committees. ODT will continue to certify permanent commercial vehicle needs and issue Certificates of War Necessity to cover these needs.

Since the majority of current applications, according to ODT, are for temporary allocations, this new procedure will take a troublesome, but routine chore off the hands of ODT district staffs, releasing personnel to direct a greater amount of attention and effort to the transportation phases of its program such as traffic registration, organization

H. The candidacy of Senator Truman for Vice-President is an affront to every American who hopes to see a return of the day when our national government may have standards higher than mere machine politics.

Truman, who is in the United States Senate because the corrupt Prendergast machine voted 50,000 names off the big-city Democratic machine bosses went to bat for him—the Kellys, Flynns, O'Connells and Hagues.

The money which corrupt political gangs squeeze out of the public comes largely from the pockets of businessmen. No man long in business has failed to gain some understanding of the methods of such political machines.

Truman's victory as Vice-President would be a notable victory for the Democratic gangs; his later elevation to the Presidency would set the keynote for new depths of political depravity in the United States.

No man who believes in good government can afford to take the chance implied in voting for the Democratic ticket.

SOCIAL TIME FOLLOWS

The monthly meeting of the Mothers' Association, Bristol public schools, was held last evening in the cafeteria of the high school, Wilson avenue. The attendance was good.

A business meeting was held with Mrs. J. Townsend, president, in charge. After reading of the minutes and the treasurer's report Mrs. Harry White was called upon to make a report of the nominating committee. The new officers nominated for the following term of office are: Mrs. Russell Crosby, resident; Mrs. Schuyler White, vice-president; Mrs. Frank Craven, secretary; Miss Hilda M. Pope, treasurer. The officers will be installed at the November meeting.

The following women were appointed by Mrs. Townsend to audit the books: Mrs. Arthur Zug, Mrs. Clarence Wilson and Mrs. Edna Lee. It was also decided to have a speaker at the next meeting. Mrs. Townsend then selected her committee to take charge of the November meeting.

Civil Air Patrol Offers Free Rides in Planes

Nine members of the Bristol high school faculty led by John Burris, and about 25 students, including eight from Bensalem high school, were given a ride in army planes, Tuesday afternoon at the Somerset Airport. The third service Command provided an army truck to transport the students.

The purpose of these rides, sponsored by the AAF is to acquaint as many teachers and students with aviation as possible. This being the first day that flying restrictions were lifted in this area, it was more or less of a celebration. It is now possible for civilians to fly anywhere within the state of Pennsylvania.

The Civil Air Patrol will hold a gala get-together at Somerset Airport Sunday. All members of Civil Air Patrol, and members of the faculty of all schools in this area are invited to attend, and will receive a free ride in an airplane.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Oct. 12—Improvement to grounds and buildings were reported upon at the October session of Bensalem Township board of school directors last evening in the high school building.

The second floor rooms at Andalusia school are being painted on Saturdays; grounds adjacent to the high school building here are being coated with a bituminous base substance; and the fire escape at Andalusia building has been formally approved by the Department of Labor and Industry.

The board received the resignation of Miss Esther Michener, teacher of grades one and two at Cornwells Heights school, effective the end of this month.

Activities were mentioned for the next few weeks. These include the junior high school play to be staged tonight and tomorrow night in the high school auditorium. The title is "Yesterday's Roses." Football schedule includes: Oct. 14th, Pa. School for the Deaf, Philadelphia, at Bensalem, 2 p. m.; Oct. 21st, Bensalem at Bristol; Oct. 28th, Morrisville at Bensalem; Nov. 4th, Bordentown Manual Training School at Bordentown, N. J. On Oct. 20th, the Bensalemite Club will conduct a sports dance in the high school auditorium.

A photographer will be at the school on Monday and Tuesday next to photograph seniors for the year book.

Transportation problems were discussed. The pupil load from Andalusia has become so unwieldy that it has become necessary to ask senior high school pupils living within two miles of the school to seek their own means of transportation. Bristol Township buses are transporting high school students from the Edlington area to the high school in order to reduce the overload.

A report on the Educational Congress held at Harrisburg two days last week was given by Superintendent of Bensalem public schools, A. Kurtz King. The manner in which the commission, appointed by Governor Martin, proposes to change the base for paying state appropriations on accounts of teachers, was studied in detail, in order to determine how such affects local board work.

COLUMBUS DAY

On the anniversary of the landing by Christopher Columbus on San Salvador, one of the Bahamas, it is customary to pay honor to his eminence as a maker of charts and maps; his skill as a navigator, his persistence in selling his dream of a New World to the rulers of Portugal, Genoa and Spain, and his mastery of the mutinous crews that would have turned back when his quest seemed all but successful.

As the years go on, less is said of his being the discoverer of the New World. Others from Europe, and probably some from Asia, preceded him. But more is being said about his enterprise under the most discouraging re-buffs. Faith in his calculations, and probably in the rumors that he heard while voyaging among the Atlantic island outposts of Europe, kept his spirit burning.

But he had other reasons for wishing to succeed. Under his contract with the Spanish crown, he was to be viceroy, or boss, of all the countries that he discovered. Furthermore, he was working on a commission basis. He was to get 10 per cent of the value of all the produce of these countries.

Columbus had an eye for business. He was a good advertiser. Returning from his first voyage, he scattered his story through the seaports of Europe. Soon he set out again with six times as many ships and ten times as many men. The exploring and colonizing business was good, but the boys in the home office got in some dirty work and once he was placed in chains on his way home. He died in poverty.

Time has shown that the real poverty of his era was in the vision of those who called themselves rich in power and money. The spirit in which Columbus was rich was so rare and lofty that the world has been a long time growing up to it.

MILITARY EYES

So beauticians are indulging in a plot to get girls married through irresistible eyes! That is the evidence given at the silver anniversary of the American Cosmetics National Association in Chicago. The make-up to capture the boys, so beauticians were told to tell girls, who go to shoppes for lookies, is the "military eye." This "eye" is described as a framed orbit following natural lines. Eyebrows come in for a part of the military eye. They must be the frames.

With them the girl who is looking for a husband will find it easier to "frame" that boy friend she wants into looking into her eyes and surrendering. But the beauty experts may be in for a hard fall. When the fighting men return from the far corners of the earth, they likely will want to get back close to nature. If they do, the girls who doctor nature by creating "liquid" eyes "framed" in alluring tints, may get the cold, hard stare from real military eyes.

College football is warming up, but those line smashes, forward passes and end runs in the Pacific are much more diverting.

"CALAMITY TOWN" by ELLERY QUEEN

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

Services for Nora—on April 15—were private. Only the family and a few friends were present—Mr. Queen, Judge and Clarice Martin, Dr. Willoughby, and some of John F.'s people from the bank. Frank Lloyd was seen about the edge of the group, straining for a glimpse of the lovely profile in the copper casket. He looked as if he had not taken his clothes off for a week, or slept during that time. When Hermy's eye rested on him, he shrank and disappeared. There were perhaps twenty mourners in all.

Hermy was heretic. She sat on straight, eyes steady and she didn't cry. Pat said it was because she was all cried out. Lola had to take John F. by the hand. Ellery saw the finer points of Jim Haight's psychology. But that was after the event. Beforehand it was impossible to tell, because Jim acted his part perfectly. He fooled them all, including the author-detective.

Jim came to the cemetery between two detectives, seemingly ignoring them, looking neither to right nor to left, on the path under the aged trees up to the top of the hill where the newly-turned earth gaped.

Most of Wrightsville watched from a decent distance. The Wrights stood about the grave in a mournful group, Lola and Pat pressing close to Hermione and their father. Close to them were Ellery Queen, Judge Eli Martin and Clarice, Doc Willoughby and some others; and, of course, Dr. Doolittle.

Which Jim was brought up, a tiny murmur arose among the onlookers. Hermy's lips were seen to move, and Jim went over to her and kissed her. He paid no attention to anyone else; after that he just stood there at the grave, a thin figure of loneliness.

Soon the interment service was over, and they were shuffling down the walk, Hermy straining backward to catch a last glimpse of the casket. The crowd at the gate parted silently.

Then Jim Haight did it. One moment he was trudging along beside the detectives, a dead man staring at the ground; the next he came alive. He tripped one of his guards. The man fell backward. Jim struck the second guard on the jaw, so that the man fell on his brother officer and they threshed about, like wrestlers, trying to regain their feet.

In those few seconds Jim was gone, running through the crowd like a bull, bowling people over, dodging and twisting. . . . Ellery shouted at him, but Jim ran on.

The detectives were on their feet now, running too, revolvers out uselessly. To fire might mean hitting innocent people.

And then Ellery saw that Jim's madness was not so mad at all. For a quarter way down the hill, past all the parked vehicles, stood a single large car, its nose pointed away from the cemetery. No one was in it; but the motor had been kept running. Ellery knew, for Jim leaped in and the car shot forward at once.

By the time the two detectives reached a clear space, and fired down the hill, the limousine was in the distance, careening crazily at a great speed.

After another few moments, the detectives reached their own car and took up the chase, one driving, the other driving. But Jim was well out of range as the two cars disappeared.

The crowd shouted, and swept over the Wrights and their friends, and automobiles began flying down the hill in clouds of dust.

Hermy lay on the living-room settee, and Pat and Lola were applying color compresses to her head while John F. tried the pages of one of his stamp albums with great deliberation, as if it were one of the most important things in the world. He was in a corner by the window to catch the late afternoon light. Clarice Martin was holding Hermy's hand tightly in an ecstasy of remorse, crying over her defection during the trial and over Nora and over this last shocking blow.

At the fireplace Dr. Willoughby and Mr. Queen conversed in low tones. Then Judge Martin came in from outdoors. And with him was Carter Bradford.

Everything stopped, as if an enemy had walked into camp. But Carter ignored it. He was quite pale, but held himself erect; and he kept from looking at Pat who had turned paler than he. Clarice Martin was frankly frightened. She glanced quickly at her husband, but Eli shook his head and went over to the window to seat himself by John F.

"I don't want to intrude, Mrs. Wright," said Carter stiffly. "But I had to tell you how badly I feel about—all this."

"Thank you, Carter," said Hermy. "Lola, stop babbling me! Carter, what about—?" Hermy swallowed—"Jim?"

"Jim got away, Mrs. Wright." "I'm glad," cried Pat. "Oh, I'm so very glad!"

Carter glanced her way. "Don't say that, Patty. That sort of thing never winds up right. Nobody gets away, Jim would have been killed out—advised to have stuck it out."

"So that you could bound him to his death, I suppose! All over again!"

John F. left his stamp album where it was. He put his thin hand on Carter's arm. "It was nice of you to come here today, Cart. I'm sorry if I was ever harsh with you. How does it look?"

"Bad, Mr. Wright," Carter's lips tightened. "Naturally, the alarm is out. All highways are being watched. It's true he got away, but it's only a question of time before he's captured."

"Bradford," inquired Mr. Queen from the fireplace, "have you traced the getaway car?"

"Yes."

"Looked like a put-up job to me," muttered Dr. Willoughby. "That car was in a mighty convenient place, and the motor was running!"

"Whose car is it?" queried Lola. "It was rented from Homer Findlay's garage in Low Village this morning."

"Rented!" exclaimed Clarice Martin. "By whom?"

"Roberta Roberts."

Ellery murmured "Ah," in a tone of dark satisfaction, and nodded as if that were all he had wanted to know. But the others were surprised.

Lola tossed her head. "Good for her!"

"Carter allowed me to talk to the woman myself," said Judge Eli Martin wearily. "She's smart. Insists she hired the car just to drive to the cemetery this morning."

"And that she left the motor running by mistake," added Carter Bradford dryly.

"And was it a coincidence that she also turned the car about so that it pointed down the hill?" asked Mr. Queen.

"That's what I asked her," said Carter. "Oh, there's no question about her complicity, and we're holding her. But that doesn't get Jim Haight back, nor does it give us a case against this Roberts woman. We'll probably have to let her go."

"She visited Jim on Sunday," remarked Ellery reflectively.

"Also yesterday. I'm convinced she arranged the escape with Jim then."

"What difference does it make?" Hermy sighed. "Escape—no escape—Jim won't ever escape." Then Hermy said a queer thing, considering how she had always claimed she felt about her son-in-law and his guilt. Hermy exclaimed, "Poor Jim!"

The news arrived at ten o'clock that same night. Carter Bradford came over again and the time he went directly to Pat Wright and took her hand. She was astonished she forgot to snatch it away. Then he said gently: "It's up to you and Lola now, Pat."

"What . . . on earth are you talking about?" asked Pat in a shrill voice.

"Dakin's men have found the car. Jim escaped it."

"Found it?"

Ellery Queen rose from a dark corner and came over into the light. "If it's bad news, keep your voices down. Mrs. Wright's just gone to bed, and John F. doesn't look as if he could take any more today. Where was the car found?"

"At the bottom of a ravine off Route 478A, up in the hills. About fifty miles from here."

"Lord!" breathed Pat, staring. "It had crashed through the highway rail," reported Carter, "just past a hairpin turn. Dropped about two hundred feet."

"And Jim?" asked Ellery.

Pat sat down in the love seat by the fireplace, looking up at Cart as if he were a judge about to pronounce doom.

"Found in the car," Cart turned aside. "Dead." He turned back and looked humbly at Pat. "So that's the end of the case."

"Poor Jim!" whispered Pat.

"I want to talk to you two," said Mr. Queen.

It was very late. Hermione had heard, and had gone to pieces. Strange that the funeral of her daughter should have found her strong, and the news of her son-in-law's death weak. John F. was in hardly better case; he had taken to trembling, and the doctor noticed it, and packed him off to bed in a guest room while Lola assisted with Hermy, and Pat helped her father up the stairs. . . . Now it was over, and they were both asleep, and Lola had locked herself in, and Dr. Willoughby had gone home, sagging.

"I want to talk to you two," said Mr. Queen.

Carter was still there. He had been a bed of rock for Hermy this night. She had actually clung to him while she wept, and Mr. Queen thought this, too, was strange. And then he thought: No, this is the rock, the last rock, and Hermy clings. If she lets go, she drowns, they all drown. That is how she must feel.

And he repeated: "I want to talk to you two."

However, plungers have been known to go on strikes. I know something better—a water-pressure drain cleaner! Looks a little like a simple hand shower spray. The enclosed advertisement found in a newspaper of 1805, I think it is amusing, considering the condition of the Delaware at present, and would be of some interest to the public. It appeared in "Aurora, General Advertiser: Published (daily) by William Duane, successor of Benjamin Franklin Bache, in Franklin Court, Market Street, Philadelphia." Headed "Bristol Baths" it says:

"Twenty miles from Philadelphia on the main road to New York, and banks of the Delaware.

GOOD
NEWS! DU PONT

is self-cleaning!

Get good paint now... It pays

In painting your house, protection of the wood is just as important as good looks. Du Pont House Paint forms a tough, durable film—guards the surface against rot, rust, and decay. And its beauty lasts and lasts.

Keeps white houses white

Du Pont House Paint contains titanium dioxide pigment—whiter than snow! That's why, with Du Pont House Paint, you'll have the whitest house in the block. Yes, and this paint stays white, because—

It's self-cleaning

All paints collect dirt on exposure. But, with Du Pont House Paint, "self-cleaning" starts after a few months of normal weather conditions. A fine white powder forms on the surface. Heavy rains wash this away, carrying the dirt with it—leaving the newly exposed surface clean and white again! (Unusual climatic or dirt-collecting conditions in extremely sooty industrial communities may, of course, delay this process.) Because this "self-cleaning" is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected.

Despite this remarkable quality of Du Pont House Paint, it costs no more than other good paints.

DU PONT HOUSE PAINT $3.35

► We will be glad to recommend a reliable painter. He knows how to do the job right, how much or how little paint to use. His skill means savings for you—and paint conservation for America.

powers by Harry Truman, the product of the gutters of Kansas City politics? Harry S. Truman before he was elected Senator was an obscure county judge in Missouri. He was put in that position by Tom Pendergast. After he had served as judge, he asked Pendergast to make him county collector. This position, under the Democratic rule in Kansas City, carried with it fees of thirty to forty thousand dollars a year, and Pendergast felt that Harry Truman was hardly deserving of such a rich plumb, so he said: "No, Harry, no county collector job for you just yet, but I'll make you United States Senator until you are ready to become county collector." So down to Washington as United States Senator from Missouri went Harry Truman, backed up with Tom Pendergast's own remark: "I can send my office boy to Washington as Senator." Yes, Harry Truman was elected Senator with the help of that Pendergast machine, which produced in Kansas City more votes than there were registered voters in the county, that machine which controlled all of the sordid vice and corruption with which that city was ridden. Yes, that Pendergast machine was led by the same Tom Pendergast who eventually ended up in the penitentiary at Leavenworth and is today a paroled convict. That's the kind of background Harry Truman has. He is the same Harry Truman who publicly showed the people of this country his obligation to Pendergast, the jail bird. He is the same Harry Truman who stood on the floor of the Senate and defended Tom Pendergast with the statement that his boss was being persecuted for political reasons. He is the same Harry Truman who denounced the judges from the floor of the Senate—judges who had been appointed by the Governor of Missouri to clean up the foul mess of Kansas City. He is the same Harry Truman who did everything in his power to prevent the re-appointment of the United States Attorney who prosecuted the conviction of the Senator's boss, Tom Pendergast. Can that be the type of person that the people want to represent us at the peace table, No, I can't believe that the people of America will ever be willing to take the chance that this Harry Truman should take part in our peace negotiations.

"But, besides the shadow of Tom Pendergast, which is always over Harry Truman, what other figures can we see surrounding him? Let me recall to you the situation at the New Deal Convention in Chicago last July. The delegates that were there assembled wanted either Henry Wallace or Justice James Byrnes as their vice-presidential candidate. The big city bosses as represented by Hague of Jersey City, Kelly of Chicago, Flynn of Brooklyn, and Hannegan of St. Louis, would not consider Henry Wallace. Sidney Hillman, the Communist, through whom everything had to be cleared, would not consider Justice Byrnes, so bosses Hague, Kelly, Flynn and Hannegan selected the office boy of their old pal, Pendergast, the paroled convict. When Bob Hannegan, the man who is nominally heading the Democratic party until Sidney Hillman gets ready to take over completely, went to Harry Truman and told him that he was to be the vice-presidential candidate, Truman gasped and said quite frankly, 'I'm not capable of being vice-president.' Those were his very words and neither Hannegan nor Truman have ever denied them. As a matter of fact, the next morning Truman publicly withdrew his name as a candidate for vice-president by announcing it to the press. But Hannegan and Hillman were not through with Harry Truman, for he was shortly sent for by Sidney Hillman, the Communist, and after a long conference, Hillman said to Truman: 'I have not changed my mind. I want you to be vice-president.' Immediately following this conference, Harry Truman reversed his position of a few hours previously and announced that not only was he a candidate but that he would win the nomination. The subject had been cleared with Sidney and the word went out from Hillman's headquarters that Harry Truman must be named as the vice-presidential candidate.

"As a veteran of World War I, and the father of a son fighting today in the Infantry, I speak most feelingly to you other fathers and mothers and wives and sweethearts. I speak to you now not as a candidate for the office of State Treasurer, but I speak to you as a veteran and a father. Can we take the chance of having a man like Harry Truman represent our boys at the peace table? Can we take the chance that the influence of Tom Pendergast, the paroled convict, will be the same factor in writing the peace that it has been in everything else that Harry Truman has ever done? Can we take the chance that Boss Hague of Jersey City, Boss Kelly of Chicago, Boss Ed Flynn of Brooklyn and Boss Hannegan of St. Louis—can we take the chance that these men, who represent everything that is bad in our political system of government—can we take the chance that they to whom Harry Truman owes his candidacy, shall in return have his ear as he sits at the peace table? Can we take the chance of Harry Truman sitting at that table to negotiate with the other great powers—can we take the chance that Sidney Hillman and Earl Browder, the two leading Communists in this country, should have their words of influence with Harry Truman—Harry Truman who has always taken orders from those who have helped in his rise to power—Harry Truman who has always believed in returning favor for favor—Harry Truman, the personal henchman of Tom Pendergast, the paroled convict?

"Oh, my friends, that's what I meant when I entitled my speech tonight: 'The Spectre at the Peace Table.' Fate could very easily place Harry Truman in that chair with Winston Churchill at his right hand, Chiang Kai-shek at his left and Joe Stalin facing him. But the spectres that I see and that I want to call so vividly to the minds of every one of you are the shadows of Hague, Kelly, Flynn and Hannegan, whispering to Harry Truman, one of their own boys, on the one hand, and the shades of Sidney Hillman and Earl Browder together, at Truman's other side, directing every move he makes as he plans the future welfare of this country in negotiation with Joseph Stalin.

"Do we want to take the chance that those principles for which our boys are fighting and dying today—do we want to take the chance that those ideals of theirs shall be replaced by the Communistic doctrines of Sidney Hillman and Earl Browder, and the connivances of the power-greedy political bosses I have mentioned? The answer to that question is a strong and vibrant 'NO.' The American people don't want that type of peace. The American people don't want that kind of government. The American people will on November seventh next rise up and show the world that they don't believe in gambling with fate and that they have therefore elected to the presidency and the vice-presidency two great Americans, Governor Thomas E. Dewey and Governor John W. Bricker."

ization of joint action plans, agricultural industry transportation programs and maintenance and conservation work.

There will be four conditions, under the new procedure, where local boards will be authorized to issue a smaller ration than that allotted by ODT on the Certificate of War Necessity. These conditions are:

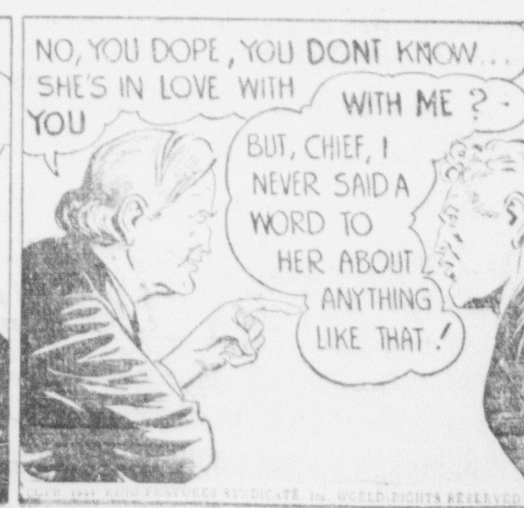

1. When the Board has knowledge of discontinuance or reduction in the operations of the commercial vehicle operator.
2. When the Board has knowledge of the misuse of commercial rations and such misuse indicates an overabundance. (For example, the use of commercial rations in an operator's personal passenger car.)
3. When an applicant indicates to the Board that his needs are less than those certified.
4. When an applicant fails to use all of his ration, or fails to claim his ration within a reasonable time.

If none of these four conditions apply, OPA Boards will continue

SOME "QUOTES" FROM THE WRITINGS OF WILLIAM PENN

Wide observance through Pennsylvania of the 300th anniversary of William Penn's birth on October 24th, has focused public attention on the life story, the great achievements, and the writings of the Founder of Pennsylvania. As a pamphleteer and author Penn wrote some million and a half words; the selections we quote sum up in thought and expression the rich experiences of a life full of wise observation and broad philanthropy.

"There is nothing of which we are apt to be so lavish as of Time, and about which we ought to be more solicitous; since without it we can do nothing in this World. Time is what we want most, but alas! we use worst, and for which God will certainly most strictly

"Patience and Diligence, like Faith, removes Mountains."

"Never give out while there is Hope; but hope not beyond Reason, for that shows more Desire than Judgment."

"Be not tempted to presume by Success: For many that have got largely, have lost all, by coveting to get more."

"Too few know when they have Enough, and fewer know how to employ it."

"It is the still, the quiet, and the righteous life, which must be exalted over all."

"We can never be the better for our religion if our neighbor is the worse for it."

"Government seems to me a part of religion itself, a thing sacred in its institutions and end."

Pearl Buck Tells Doylestown Audience Why Chinese Failed

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 12 — That China is not the poor country that it is often described as being but, instead, it is a rich land unable, temporarily, to make use of its resources, was the assertion made by Pearl Buck in an address before a capacity audience in the auditorium of the high school, Monday.

The meeting, held under the auspices of the United China Relief Committee, was one of similar meetings held throughout the country in recognition of the 33rd anniversary of the founding of the Chinese Republic. The committee is also one of the 22 participating organizations in the annual War Fund drive which opened yesterday.

Mrs. William E. Geil, chairman of the committee, presided at the meeting and introduced the high school chorus which sang a Chinese song and the Chinese national anthem. J. Leonard Halderman, chairman of the Doylestown area for the War Fund drive, introduced Mrs. Buck.

Two reasons were outlined by the speaker for the slow progress made by China in developing her resources. One of them, the lack of transportation, prevented getting the yields from the rich sections of the country to those parts where famine and floods prevail.

"In normal times," she said, "it is cheaper to purchase flour in the United States and have the expense of shipping it to the famine affected areas than to buy it from a flour producing district in China itself."

The other reason for the backwardness of China, given by the speaker, was lack of social sense on the part of the Chinese.

"The basic element in their lives is the family and they do not understand our ideas about institutional care and assistance. Every one in China belongs to a 'family' and to a Chinese it is brutal to send a person to an institution where he has no friends nor relatives to look after him. They have no sense of responsibility for any one outside their family."

Pearl Buck does not think that China has been treated well as one of the Allied nations. The Chinese government was not invited to the Quebec conference until after everything had been arranged and it was not represented at all at the Cairo meeting.

"China today is in worse condition than it ever was: it has been through eight years of savage warfare and the nation and its citizens are tired, not apathetic as some have accused them of being. The loss of the Burma Road prevented from reaching them in any quantity and most of the fighting has been done by them with only rifles and sometimes without even those."

"We hear people talking about a peace that will last for 50 years, but I will be thankful if we have one that continues for 20 years. That is the longest I dare hope for," Mrs. Buck concluded.

The amount of the offering taken for China Relief was $233, it was announced today.

Dear Father, we thank Thee for pioneers in the realm of Christian living. We praise Thee for men and women of great faith. We give thanks for individuals who can and do say "I believe in God the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth; And in Jesus Christ his only Son, our Lord. . . I believe in the Holy Ghost; The Holy Catholic Church; The Communion of Saints; The Forgiveness of sins; The Resurrection of the body; and the Life everlasting." We thank Thee, this day, for the spirit of a Columbus but above all we thank Thee for the spirit of the Christ Who is daily revealing a new world of love and service to all who live by faith. Amen.

HOW TO HOLD FALSE TEETH MORE FIRMLY IN PLACE

Do your false teeth annoy and embarrass by slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, laugh or talk? Just sprinkle a little PASTE-TEETH on your plates. This alkaline (non-acid) powder holds false teeth more firmly and more comfortably. No gummy, goosy, pasty taste or feeling. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get PASTE-TEETH today at any drug store. (Advertisement)

sugar bank for special occasions, you'll find it good strategy to take your cue from the Californians and serve fresh fruits on lettuce with jelly, mayonnaise or a tart French dressing as a happy dinner ending. This favorite West Coast delicacy can be counted on to appeal to sweet tooth and makes no inroads whatever on your sugar ration. With the fruit salad it's good wartime strategy to co-star decaffeinated coffee so that everyone can relax taut wartime nerves over extra cups.

You can rely on changing seasonal fruits to keep your salads from monotony. Be sure to chill and crisp the lettuce. Fruit and mayonnaise should be cold, too. And whether you serve the salad from a 1 1/2 dish or on individual plates, remember that precise arrangement and contrasting color make it a real picture dessert.

Dessert Demi Tasse

Use 1 rounded tablespoon all-purpose grind decaffeinated coffee to every cup (1/2 pint) water. Make by boiled or percolated method. (If percolated, "perk" 15 to 18 minutes to bring out the rich coffee flavor.)

Creamy Iced Mocha

Here's a tricky way to make a creamy iced coffee without cream. It's good hostess technique to make it of decaffeinated coffee, so that everybody can relax taut nerves over extra servings without worrying about sleeping problems later on. Freeze decaffeinated coffee in the ice cube trays. Use double strength decaffeinated coffee, made with two heaping tablespoons of decaffeinated coffee, regular grind to each cup (1/2 pint) of water. Fill glass with frozen decaffeinated coffee cubes, then fill glass with warm milk. The resulting beverage gives the illusion of a generous cream quota.
